

CLIENT SUCCESS STORY

The Community Market staff recently interviewed a young man whose wife left him, taking his two daughters out of state. In less than a month, the girls called him in tears, wanting to return home. He gathered enough money to fly them back and settled them into their home and school.

Seeking grocery assistance due to depleted finances, he expressed gratitude for having his daughters back and his determination to care for them. He realized the costs of girls' needs—personal care, hair products, accessories. CM staff and volunteers provided personal care items and a Helping Hands brochure for local resources.
